

Content

Introduction: Chinese Studies in the Recent Decade and in the Post-Pandemic, Wartime Era (Li-Chi Chen, Anna Sroka-Grądział)	9
Part I: General Linguistics
Chapter 1: ㄅ Jua ⁷ 和 ㄟ Kui ² in Taiwanese Southern Min: Interpretations Based on Valuation (Chinfa Lien)	19
Chapter 2: Perception of Prosodic Prominence and Boundaries by Nonnative Speakers (Grace Chen-Hsiu Kuo)	47
Part II: Language, Society, and Culture
Chapter 3: Lexical and Grammatical Convergence of Chinese Languages and English in Malaysia (Ralf Vollmann, Tek Wooi Soon)	77
Chapter 4: The Lexicographical Presentation of Nationalism in Modern China: Definitions of the Headword Rénmín ‘The People’ in Selected Cihǎi ‘The Sea of Words’ Editions (Chin-Fung Ng)	97
Chapter 5: The Socio-Pragmatics of Complaint in Taiwanese Mandarin: The Impact of Gender (Chihsia Tang)	131
Part III: Chinese Language Teaching
Chapter 6: An Analysis of TOCFL Grammatical Errors Made by Polish Students Learning Chinese as a Second Language (Shu-Fen Chen)	165
Chapter 7: Object Fronting in Mandarin Chinese: An Observation on Students Learning Chinese as a Foreign Language (I-Chun Chen)	201
Chapter 8: A Study of CSL Learners’ Responses to Product-Oriented and Process-Oriented Writing Approaches (Min-Qi Chen)	217
Part IV: Literary Studies
Chapter 9: A Comparison of Lü Kun and Kaibara Ekiken’s Views on Women’s Education—Including Insights from Adaptations of Ban Zhao’s Lessons for Women (Tsui-Hua Wu)	243